Product Description

Direct Sales from Chinese Source Manufacturers - Introduction to Automotive Paint Accessories

Meklon auxiliary materials sell well in the African market: professional tool adaptation, demand continues to rise

In the African automotive repair and sheet metal spray market, Meklon auxiliary materials have become a "must-have tool" for local auto repair shops and sheet metal spray centers with their core advantages of "professional adaptation+high cost-effectiveness". Among them, star products such as car body putty, paper funnel, spray gun, and sandpaper are particularly popular.

In response to the high temperature exposure and bumpy road conditions in Africa, Meklon body putty uses a high toughness resin formula, covering a temperature range of -10 to 80 , with excellent resistance to UV cracking. Even under sustained high temperatures of 40 +in sub Saharan Africa, it remains flat and does not crack. After filling and repairing, it can be polished within 2 hours, greatly reducing maintenance time; The paper funnel is optimized for the common small package oil and paint packaging scenarios in Africa, with thick paper to prevent penetration and a conical opening that accurately adapts to various oil drums and paint cans. The average price per unit is less than 0.5 US dollars, but it has become a "favorite" for auto repair shops to reduce consumable costs due to its durability (can be reused 3-5 times).

At present, Meklon auxiliary materials have covered over 200 auto repair shops and sheet metal spraying centers in major cities such as Lagos in Nigeria, Nairobi in Kenya, and Johannesburg in South Africa, with a repurchase rate of over 85%. The boss of a large sheet metal spray chain in Lagos gave feedback:

"Meklon's putty fills quickly and does not collapse, the spray gun atomizes evenly without clogging the nozzle, and the sandpaper polishes smoothly without pilling. These tools combined double our repair efficiency and directly increase customer satisfaction!"

Its high adaptability and durability are driving Meklon to become the "hidden champion" of the African automotive aftermarket.
